Cultivating Leadership

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Levon Johnson
President/CEO
ljohnson@elkhart.org

Greater Elkhart has long been known for our entrepreneurial spirit and the innovation mindset. It is a signature of our community and one that we often point to when speaking about qualities that make our area unique.

Another unique strength that should be highlighted is Greater Elkhart's cultivation of leaders. There are a number of factors that contribute to the leadership depth we have.

The fact that so many of our leaders in our region, intentionally or organically, are willing to share their leadership journeys serves as inspiration and aspiration for those that will follow. Think about the best leaders you interact with and how they mentor others without ever having to carry that title. Our leaders are hands-on and accessible to other would-be leaders.

There is a place where skills meet opportunities. In Greater Elkhart, whether it be within businesses, government or nonprofits, there are so many opportunities for emerging leaders to engage and hone their leadership skills to make a difference in our community. Because of this, the opportunity to grow in leadership opportunities happens sooner than in other parts of the country.

This phrase is used for other purposes, but when we see something, we say something. When someone shows the ability to lead, those around them don't keep it a secret. Those individuals are noticed, watched, and recruited to enhance their abilities and opportunities to lead. So often it is others that see the leaders in people before they see it in themselves.

The unselfishness and wisdom of pointing someone else out for leadership is a powerful characteristic of Greater Elkhart.

For 33 years the Greater Elkhart Chamber of Commerce has had a front row seat to the commitment to intentionally build leadership capacity within Elkhart. As the home of the Elkhart Leadership Academy, the Elkhart Chamber is proud to have helped over 750 individuals grow as leaders and continue, long after their graduation, to impact our community.

Over the years the Elkhart Leadership Academy has grown and evolved into a staple of leadership development in our region. The commitment of the Academy is to remain strong in the principles of leadership and agile in addressing the leadership challenges of today.

The Leadership Academy doesn't happen without the businesses that invest in the emerging leaders within their organizations, the commitment of each Academy participant, the gift of time by so many in our community that share experiences and knowledge, or the dedication of our Leadership Council, Staff Liaisons and Board Liaisons.

This year's graduation is coming up soon and we are excited to share the work that the soon-to-be graduates have engaged in over the last 10 months. It is also time to start identifying the 2022-23 Elkhart Leadership Academy participants. The application for the next class is on our website.

The center spread of this magazine has more information on the Elkhart Leadership Academy and this year's participants and projects.

Just in case you have not heard this lately, thank you for the leadership you provide to your business or organization, to those around you, and to our community.

Cohort Sessions Throughout the Year

LaVern Miller talks about collaboration, innovation and design during a tour of Teaberry Wood Products in Middlebury. LaVern and Rachel, his wife, own and work in the arts and craft business full time. They are Amish Mennonite and shared aspects of their faith, culture and community with the Academy.

The overnight retreat is the second session in the Academy schedule. The retreat enables participants to access different parts of their minds, create new curiosity, and generate good will. Participants gain new perspectives on team building, personality styles and communication.

Academy members view the studio interviews on monitors in the control room. Interviews with a reporter or talk-show host can be a win-win: they get an interview to fill air-time or column, and you get an opportunity to share your agenda or point-of-view.

Academy members meet one another for the first time at orientation. Networking contributes to social well-being, and leads to the exchange of ideas and opportunities for mentorship.

Emily Toledo, Samantha Cline, Shawna Koontz, Jenny Sanders, Allison Long and Jason Auvil take the stage as Premier Arts leads the Academy in improv training, useful to enhance conversation and presentation skills.

The Academy shines in the spotlight with lunch on the stage at the Lerner. Tours during the day also included Midwest Museum of American Art and Ruthmere Mansion.

Phil Schmidt experiences a studio interview in front of a green screen at the Martin Media Center on the campus of the University of Notre Dame.

Jack Springgate, WNDU Multimedia Journalist, prepares to interview Mark Oyer. Successful encounters with the news media require careful preparation and understanding of how media representatives operate.

Business Recognition Awards

Everence Financial, located at 1110 N Main St in Goshen, has received a Business of the Month Award from the Greater Elkhart Chamber Business Recognition Council. Everence Financial began as MMA (Mennonite Mutual Aid) in 1945, offering loans to church service volunteers. Their mission is to help people and institutions integrate their faith and values into their financial decisions to accomplish their stewardship goals. In 1952, a charitable services entity was formed to provide counsel for planned charitable giving to members wanting to make a difference in the world by supporting the causes that are most important to them. In 1999, they began incorporating community development investing into what they do, as a way to support efforts to replace practices of injustice and exclusion in the world with access, opportunity and hope. Everence offers services such as asset management, employee benefits, debt counseling, endowments, insurance, and business succession planning. Everence has credit union branches in 13 states and has members in all 50 states. The Goshen Campus serves as one of six Everence Regional Headquarters, and is also a credit union branch. Nationally, Everence employs over 400; including 200 at the Goshen Campus. Staff members are encouraged to become engaged in the community and are connected to volunteer opportunities and receive paid time off to do volunteer service.

Senior1Care, located at 230 N Main St, Ste 4, Elkhart, has received a Business of the Month Award from the Greater Elkhart Chamber Business Recognition Council. Senior1Care was born out of a need: Carl and Susan Bossung were unable to find quality, reliable home care agencies that met their standards to serve Carl's mother, Loretta, during the final stages of her life. Thus, the idea of starting a family business emerged. Their business began in 2006 with two caregivers. Today, they employ over 350 caregivers and continue to grow each year. For 7 years in a row, Senior1Care has been recognized by Inc.com's "Inc 5000" list as one of the fastest growing companies in the United States. Senior1Care provides a variety of home care services for clients, including personal care, companionship, meal prep, medication reminders, care management, light housekeeping, and consultation/referral services. Many of the services provided by Senior1Care are modeled after care that was needed for Loretta, who passed away at age 95 while living independently in her own residence. The company directly supports several not for profits, and is actively engaged in community organizations including the Elkhart Rotary Club.
